Nitrous Oxide is a frantic blast of fast-paced blasting like no other. Race through levels in an automatic tube and single-handedly take out wave after wave of enemies. Riddled with strategically placed, locked doors to slow the action down, the game is all about timing your moves. Slow down and you've got to decide if you're staying and running or making a mad dash for the door. But don't get stuck, because you'll be rewarded with the "Retro Angle" if you keep moving. Backing up too far and getting cornered will mean instant-death. It's up to you to decide the outcome, but the best idea would be to keep on moving and moving quickly. Strategies and Tips Keep Moving: No matter how fast you move, there will always be an enemy or two following behind you. You don't get any special bonuses for moving slowly, but it may give you more time to get to that door or to get out of a very tight spot. If you're forced into a corner, you'll die on the spot. Retro Angle: Backing up too far and getting cornered will mean instant-death. Rushing to a door will usually be beneficial, but the best idea would be to keep on moving and moving quickly. Missiles: The game is all about trying to land a good shot. Missiles can be activated by tapping on the screen and by firing them off. A miss is no big deal, but hits score you points. Controller Support: The controller buttons are mapped to the touch screen. If you tap the bottom of the controller, you will initiate a backwards slow-mo action. This will let you see enemies that are behind you or let you go straight for a door. To Exit:

If you've busted a level and want to get out, simply press the touch screen and the game will let you out. There are no doors this way, but if you hit the left trigger and start moving to the right, you'll quickly work your way out of the level. Upgradable: To get the "Rocket" mode, you need to collect a total of 30 credits. The credits are replenished every time you shoot or destroy an enemy. In a sense, the credit rating should be a prerequisite for making a large purchase such as a home. But in a different sense, credit scores have become a monster that no one can control. This week, the Office of the Comptroller of

Guide Allergic airway inflammation involves multiple cell types (epithelial, smooth muscle, inflammatory cells) and proteins. Several immunologic mechanisms contribute to allergic diseases, including the cellular events of mast cell degranulation, cytokine production, eosinophil and basophil recruitment. This research plan is directed at identification, localization and characterization of the cells and proteins that contribute to allergic inflammation. One of the major constituents of the cytoplasmic granules of mast cells is the mannitol containing, serine protease, chymase. As a first step to the identification and characterization of the serine proteases that participate in allergic inflammation, Dr. D. Geppetti (Project I) proposes to evaluate the distribution of mast cell proteases in tissue sections of the human airway, and to quantify their release by cultured human mast cells. The enzymes will be concentrated by affinity chromatography on specific protease-binding proteins of the granules. They will be analyzed biochemically by proenzyme processing in vitro, and after purification, using mass spectrometry to determine their amino acid compositions. To begin to establish the involvement of mast cell proteases in

As an added bonus, I was able to get high settings, anti-aliasing, no tessellation, HDR support on the Test Blu-Ray because...I also have the Test Blu-Ray. Clearly I'm a lovable nerd. Anyway, here's the first post-launch test. While I won't be testing the 2.1 release in particular, it's still a ton of fun. If I say the CPU was once the computer my girlfriend used to watch TV on...people will know this is a long post. Anyway, I'm already becoming excited for the next patch, it's going to be amazing to be able to go back in time and kick some Japanese ass.
