It is a goal of the academic community to inculcate in its members an ethical decision-making process, so that the end product would not be "a mess of philosophy". With that in mind, an Internet research project was designed and implemented, where a group of students under the guidance of Prof. Jürgen Bohmer analyzed the most common arguments, so that the reader could apply them to his/her daily Internet activities. The result is the book "Ethics Beyond High School", which is now available in Italian, Spanish, French and German. The book is organized in five parts, each one containing a number of chapters covering the ethical issues that are relevant to young people. In Part I, entitled "It is hard to play the game", the issue of a student's life and Internet use is examined. In Part II, "Games - entertainment or work?", some of the reasons for the creation of an Internet-based game are discussed. Part III, "Identification", is particularly interesting, since it is focused on the basic subjects of security and privacy. Part IV is entitled "Social networking", and deals with the problems associated with social media and the risk of being labelled a "creeper" and ostracized. Part V, "Ethics - what it is?", offers some further information about the concept of ethics, but more importantly, suggests some solutions to the problems mentioned above. When we think of a "beach", we often imagine a perfect, pristine spot on the coast, the type of place where you walk along a long, deserted shoreline on a beautiful and sunny day. When it comes to YouTube video titles, however, "beach" is hardly the first thing that comes to mind. I certainly know nothing about beaches or at least I didn't until I saw the title for this video. "BOMBIN" is a Dutch comedic video series created by the Dutch comedy troupe TigerMogul. In the series, a man is using a fake bomb to try to scam someone out of money. The series has been running for about two years. I was surprised to see the title "BOMBIN", but now I'm even more impressed and interested. Don't we all just love titles that we wouldn't expect? In this case, I'm assuming the "BOMBIN" label is simply a joke or a fake word. But does anyone know for sure? The clip above is the only one I could find of the series. Because it's so short, it's hard to judge what kind of content is provided. If this series continues, I hope the creators are able to go beyond the "bomb joke" concept and provide a few other interesting scenarios. In the meantime, I'm really enjoying watching the clip and
